The exercise will take place at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada test site, but is separate from the scientific developmental work at the site.

The service troops will not take part in the actual tests. A battalion of combat troops will establish a battle position, including entrenchments, barbed wire and emplacements of weapons. Prior to the actual detonation, the combat troops will withdraw to predetermined positions of safety. General Kean has stressed that the troops will not be exposed to unnecessary danger. Lemon Grove Woman Finds Father After 20 Years Separation

Mrs. Richard P. Hicks, 1757 Colfax, in finding her long lost father this week, has a story more interesting than many a movie plot.

Twenty years ago Naomi Ruth Branch, now Mrs. Hicks, aged 7, and a younger sister and two brothers lost their mother, who died in childbirth. It was impossible for her father, Claude C. Branch, of Holts Summit, Mo., to keep the little family together. The older boy, LeRoy, was taken into a family and the others placed in an orphanage. Jack was adopted by a family and the baby, Janet, by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Taylor. Later Naomi was taken into the Taylor home and raised as their own. The Taylors came to National City in 1935 where Mr. Taylor still lives, also Janet, Mrs. Jerry Fox.

Mrs. Hicks had been led to believe that her father was dead but she never gave up hunting for him.

Her husband, Richard Hicks, being a stamp collector, was interested in some old post cards and pictures, the only ties Naomi has to her childhood. One postcard addressed to Miss Rewey Drinkard (her mother) bore the post mark, Holts Summit, Mo., April 1913. Mr. Hicks wrote to the postmaster at Holts Summit asking if there was a Claude C. Branch there. The reply was that Claude's father, Albert Branch, 87, lived there. Contacting the grandfather, he sent back the address of C. C. Branch as Jefferson City, Mo., and the brother, LeRoy, a businessman in Rockford, Ill.

Mrs. Hicks has talked to her father and brother on the phone and now she is trying to carry out plans to go back to see them.

She will find a way, too, for one as persistent as Naomi Hicks is never denied.

John Casteel Gives Life on Field of Battle in Korea

Last Friday was the saddest day that could ever come to the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Casteel, 7066 San Miguel, for a telegram was delivered to them telling of the death of their younger son, John A. Casteel on October 10 following wounds received October 4 in Korea during the Allied push on Souchon. He was attached to the 1st Cavalry Division, 7th Regiment.

John A. Casteel was born in Lewiston, Mont., on April 9, 1929. He started to elementary school in Lemon Grove, later attending McKinley grade school when the family moved to San Diego, then graduating from Hoover High.

John was attending State College when he was inducted into the Army in December, 1950. When he finished his Army Leader Course at Fort Ord on June 15, he was awarded the America Spirit Honor Medal.

This medal is a medallion provided by the Citizens Committee for the Army and Navy for award to the outstanding enlisted graduate of each leadership class who having completed basic training and having been assigned directly to the leadership school, displays the outstanding qualities of leadership best expressing the American spirit, honor, initiative, loyalty and high example of comrades in arms.

John was home on two week's leave in June before reporting for Camp Stoneman for debarkation.

Probably the highest tribute that could be paid to John Casteel was made by a neighbor, Mrs. Del Fernald who said to a Review editor: "Del and I have often said that if we could raise our boys to be as fine as John Casteel, we would be happy and content. John not only had high ideals, he lived them."

Besides his parents he leaves a sister, Mrs. Mary Jane Moss, a brother, James Casteel, two uncles, George and John Casteel, and other relatives.

The family has the deepest sympathy of the entire community in its bereavement.

Milford Ellisen, another well-known artist, will paint a watercolor landscape, explaining technique as he works. Chairs will be provided for those who wish to watch in comfort. Both artists will have exhibits.

Others will be Clark Allen, Elizabeth Crowningshi'd, Jon Helland, Howard Little, J. Roland McNary, Jean Rittenhouse and Olaf Weighorst.

Four Point Program is Emphasized

In the schools in the Lemon Grove District this year, more emphasis will be placed on certain phases of the curriculum under the four point program now in operation.

No new subjects will be introduced, since existing classes have always received the required emphasis and their importance has never been minimized, but now the schools are striving for a higher degree of competency in both the teaching and learning of these phases.

Point 1 is emphasis on the mastery of skill subjects. More and more in the 3 R program, stress will be placed on the fitness and ability of students. They will take more pride in their workmanship and realize the enjoyment that comes with a job well done.

Point 2 will emphasize love of country. In social studies classes, in the study of our great American heritage, the lives of heroes and statesmen of this country will be presented. A belief in and a loyalty to the American way of life will be developed through an appreciation of the definite advantages of this mode of living as contrasted with that of other countries of the world.

Point 3 will emphasize the responsibility of the individual in a democracy. School children will be shown through their many activities that increased privileges and freedoms, as enjoyed in such a government as that of the United States, mean increased responsibility on the part of the individual as well as the group.

Point 4 emphasizes the moral and spiritual values. Although they will remain strictly nonsectarian, the schools will urge church and Sunday school attendance on the part of the pupils. Tolerance will become a familiar word in the students' acting, as well as speaking and reading vocabularies. Classes will stress the teaching of the brotherhood of man and the dignity and importance of the individual.

At a district-wide meeting in November, the means of further implementing the 4-point program will be discussed and acted upon.

Reds Explode Second Atomic Bomb; American Harvest Is Satisfactory

THE RUSSIAN BOMB—The question of what the Russians have been doing about the atomic bomb since the first explosion was announced in September, 1949, was answered last week with a White House announcement that another bomb has been exploded.

A few days later Stalin made the announcement in Russia. It was the first time the Russian people had been given any information concerning that country's atomic bomb progress.

The announcement was received in the home towns of the nation much more calmly than the report of the first explosion. The White House statement which said the new explosion was an atomic bomb, belies Communist propaganda that Russia's atomic energy development is strictly for peaceful purposes and not the manufacture of weapons.

The White House announcement said, in part: "In spite of Soviet pretensions that their atomic energy program is being directed exclusively toward peaceful purposes, this event confirms again that the Soviet Union is continuing to make atomic weapons."

Shortly after the new explosion was announced, a British source said the Russians probably now have a stockpile of 50 atomic bombs. Although the Russians have many able scientists, much of their rapid progress in atomic development is due to secrets learned by such men as Klaus Fuchs and Bruno Pontecorvo.

Warren Austin, (left), chief U.S. delegate to the UN, is greeted by Philip Jessup as he reported to a senate committee to testify in defense of Jessup's nomination as a UN delegate. Austin volunteered to appear in behalf of Jessup, who is accused by Sen. McCarthy of being "a dupe of the Communists."

IDENTIFICATION TAGS—The Federal Civil Defense administration has recommended that every civilian in the United States and its territories wear an identification tag bearing his name and address, blood type, religion, and the name and address of a person to be notified in case of injury or death. The agency recommended the tag be worn permanently on a neckline, bracelet or on a chain around the ankle.

In the event of all-out war or atomic attack, the tag would serve to identify not only the injured or dead, but the mentally ill, persons suffering from shock or amnesia, and small children. It would facilitate medical attention, help to reunite families, and be useful in legal claims of various kinds associated with damage to or destruction of life and property.

The procurement and distribution of such an identification device, and the establishment of rules for wearing it, will be the responsibilities of state civil defense agencies.

THE WHITE HOUSE—Senators, ever conscious of grass roots democracy and its lack of pretentiousness, asked a few pointed questions last week concerning the White House which has been under-going remodeling since December 7, 1949.

The senators were told "there is no royal elegance in the building. It is in keeping with dignity, but there is nothing of elegance in this building that is not equaled in many, many a private home throughout the country. It is dignified and fine, but not too fine."

All this was told behind closed doors to the senate appropriations committee before it recommended spending another $261,000 on the reconstruction of the building. Reconstruction is expected to be complete early next year.

The need for additional funds ($5,500,000 has already been spent) was attributed to increased costs of materials and unexpected delays. The building which had been on the verge of collapse has been reinforced with steel, a basement added, and new quarters made in what was formerly the attic.

AMERICAN HARVEST—Americans will eat well this coming year and, at the same time, will be able to fill its world food commitments, according to the Department of Agriculture's report of the 1951 crop situation.

It has been a trying year due to the Kansas-Missouri flood area and drought damage in a number of other sections. But the 1951 harvest is described as satisfactory.

The corn crops will be in excess of 3,000,000,000 bushels. The Agriculture department had asked for 3,500,000,000 bushels. The winter wheat harvest is expected to total 1,000,000,000 bushels, a little less than the department asked, but not dangerously low.

Generally other crops followed the wheat-corn pattern.

NEW TRUCE TALKS—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway has agreed to the Panmunjom area as a site for new Korean cease-fire talks. The village is located six miles east of Kaesong and 12 road miles northwest of Munsan.

The agreement on a site for the talks does not mean, however, that the talks will actually take place. There remains to be settled a number of technical questions concerning neutrality and policing of the area that could disrupt the best made plans.

Meanwhile, savage battles were being fought in west Korea with the Reds using artillery at a rate unknown to the Communists since the start of the war. But the Allied fall offensive continues to grind out small, hard-won gains at tremendous cost to the enemy.

American infantrymen fire a 75-MM recoilless rifle during front line action in Korea. Fighting in Korea has increased in recent weeks.

DRAFT CALL—Home town draft boards have begun reclassifying 500,000 married non-fathers. Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, said the men would be inducted into the armed forces as rapidly as they can be reclassified and processed, but estimated that fewer than 200,000 of the 500,000 would be reclassified 1-A.

Hershey urged men who have failed to notify their local draft boards that they have become fathers to do so immediately. He also reminded draft eligible men that the selective service law places upon the registrant the responsibility to notify his board of a change of status. Once the order to report for induction has been issued it is too late to reopen the case.

THE SERIES—Americans in every part of the nation last week forgot their worries long enough to listen to the world series. Wherever there was a radio, at home, in the grocery stores, filling station, poolrooms or fire stations, baseball fans listened to the Giants and Yankees battle for the championship. And it was the Yankees, playing ball like the Yankees of old, making 10 double plays during the series, who were crowned champs, taking the final game from the Giants 4-3.

DEFENSE BOND DRIVE

Americans Are Hanging on to Bonds

The Treasury department reported last week that more Americans are hanging on to more defense bonds than ever before. The Treasury said a new peak of $34,566,000,000 in defense bonds outstanding was reached October 1. The previous high was $34,543,000,000 in June, 1950.

The defense bond drive which began September 3 and ends October 27 is proving to be a big success. In addition, fewer bonds were cashed last month than at any time in the past 17 months.

The department reported 6,200,000 Americans are buying bonds through payroll deduction. At present one out of every two families in the nation hold defense bonds of some kind. The ratio is expected to increase.

THE WASHINGTON Merry Go Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Undercover Drive

SEN. Owen Brewster of Maine is leading an undercover drive to depose GOP national chairman Guy Gabrielson — because Gabrielson won't join the covert anti-Eisenhower campaign.

This is what was back of the slambang attack on Gabrielson by Isolationist Republican Senators Dirksen of Illinois, Welker of Idaho and Jenner of Indiana, all faithful friends of Brewster's.

For some time there has been bad blood between the amiable, conservative Gabrielson—who feels he must be neutral as to all GOP candidates—and Brewster, who is both the strategist for extreme rightwing forces in the senate and likewise Taft's campaign adviser. Gabrielson is privately pro-Taft, but he refused to go along on the anti-Eisenhower smear campaign recently distributed in Maine.

In fact, Gabrielson told a senate elections subcommittee he was "surprised and shocked" at the circulation of the "Partisan Republicans" pamphlet linking Eisenhower with the Communists.

Therefore when conscientious Republican Senator Williams of Delaware criticized Gabrielson's connection with RFC loans to Carthage Hydrocol, Brewster saw his chance. He called in other Republican senators, asked them to join Williams "for the good of the party."

Sam Rayburn Rages

Speaker Sam Rayburn, usually an easygoing soul, gave Congressman Clarence Cannon of Missouri, chairman of the house appropriations committee, a private dressing-down last week.

Cannon, who has had a tough time getting appropriations okayed in his committee, dropped into Rayburn's office to ask for a fourth 30-day extension to permit the government to operate another month while waiting for its appropriation bills to pass congress. The bills were supposed to pass by the end of the fiscal year, June 30, and ever since that date, the government has been operating on a month-to-month piece-meal basis.

The speaker listened to Cannon's request and then hit the ceiling. He told the startled Missourian that this is the first time in history that congress has had to give four extensions on appropriations bills.

Too Late in Iran

Sorest people against the British in the Iranian oil dispute are other oil men in the middle east. They point out that the British oil concession in Iran was obtained by corruption, that Britain kept certain members of the Iranian parliament on its payroll for years, and that everyone in Teheran knows this.

They also point out that the royalties paid by the British are so niggardly that the Iranians were bound to kick over the traces.

In Indonesia, American companies pay 60 per cent royalty to the Indonesian government, keep 40 per cent. In Arabia the split is fifty-fifty. But in Iran, Britain officially pays only 25 per cent to Iran, though unofficially and through secret bookkeeping the split is reported nearer 12 per cent for Iran; 88 per cent for Britain.

Justice Douglas Warned

In Recent months the state department has been on the ball, but this was far too late. In 1949, for instance, Justice William O. Douglas came back from Iran to warn the state department what was bound to happen. On January 30, this column also warned: "Moscow is waging an extremely effective campaign to take over Iran by friendly infiltration. Simultaneously, the United States has so bungled its diplomacy that Iran is on the verge of tossing aside its traditional friendship with the U.S.A. . . . Iran has cut the Voice of America, given free play to the Moscow radio, has negotiated a new trade treaty with Russia . . ."

For months, however, U.S. ambassadors in Teheran had instructions not to discuss the British oil problem. This was Britain's baby, they were advised, and we should keep hands off.

Now, however, the entire middle east is on the verge of a crisis—and possible war—because of this bungling.

A-Bomb Report

The atomic energy commission has sent President Truman an extremely encouraging report on the atomic race with Russia. This is the inside reason behind the enthusiastic statements recently about our fantastic A-bomb progress.

The report to the President says flatly that the United States has now regained the tremendous atomic superiority it had over Russia in August of 1949 when the first Soviet atomic bomb was exploded.

SENATE RESTAURANT

Restaurant Manager Says Most Senators Are Meat, Potato Men

WNU Washington Bureau

When a moment of leisure hits Capitol Hill, many members of congress automatically head toward the restaurants in the capitol building for food and relaxation. On the house side the restaurant is one of the most easy, relaxed, and informal spots in all of the capitol. Its counterpart across the building, the senate dining room, is much more formal.

The house restaurant runs smoothly under the supervision of William A. Brockwell, manager, and Mrs. Edith G. Ridgely, hostess. They must, and do, know every representative, member of the press, and employee in the house, since the patrons are limited to these three groups and their guests. Working under some difficulty, the lack of space and the fact that invariably everybody wants to eat at one time, Mr. Brockwell and Mrs. Ridgely, and their staff of 110 are able to serve and satisfy their clientele, with only 250 seats.

It is not at all unusual for them to learn at 10 or 11 a.m. that a congressman is planning a luncheon for as many as 50 that day. These parties are generally limited to 50 because that's the capacity of the speaker's dining room, which is separate from the restaurant. Provisions are kept on hand at all times for any of these short notice affairs. In addition to the restaurant and the speaker's dining room, there is a large cafeteria in the house office building across the street, and another one in the senate office building where hundreds of employees in these buildings generally eat.

There are also two small snack restaurants, one on each side of the capitol. When the house is in session, the restaurant is open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and when the house has adjourned, it closes at 3:00 p.m.

SOME CONGRESSMEN have frequent parties, many never entertain. Representative Frank W. Boykin of Alabama has the largest and most frequent parties. The Texas delegation has lunch en masse every Wednesday in the speaker's dining room when congress is in session. The Iowa delegation makes a point of a breakfast once a week when congress is in session. The Republican members of the Ohio delegation meet frequently, as do the delegations from Alabama, Arkansas, and Tennessee.

To bring a home town flavor to the representatives in Washington, the restaurant imports special food from many parts of the country for parties held on the hill or for general consumption. For instance, they bring in salmon from the west coast, muskrats from Louisiana, strawberries from Alabama, and a special rice from Arkansas to make into a pudding.

The favorite dessert of the congressmen is apple pie. Generally, they are meat, potato, and apple pie men. Most of them like plain, substantial food, and as Mr. Brockwell points out, none of them are trying to lose weight.

Only about a dozen of them ever ask about fads or diets, such as the recent yen for yogurt or black strap molasses and whole wheat germ.

In such a place where many personalities meet, funny incidents occur, such as the two ladies who had secured passes to the visitors' gallery of congress and stopped at the restaurant to ask if they could get lunch. Mrs. Ridgely told them that in order to be served they would have to be accompanied by a member of congress. They held a whispered consultation, then turned brightly to Mrs. Ridgely and said: "Oh, that will be all right, we don't mind!"

The relaxed atmosphere of the house restaurant makes a daily, pleasant retreat for the legislators of the country.

TEEN-AGE LOVE

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

IT was only natural that Rose should be thrilled at thoughts of meeting Loring Hunt. After all, Loring Hunt was the most glamorous of modern day screen stars. And Rose—well, Rose was just another young girl with dreams.

She had fallen in love with Loring Hunt when she was 12 years old. Maturity had rather dampened her enthusiasm; at least she never betrayed the real depths of it.

When told of Loring Hunt's pending arrival Jerry had snorted.

"What!" he cried disgustedly. "That sap coming here? To your house? Why, your mother must be out of her mind!"

"Mother's far from out of her mind," Rose replied furiously. "It's only common decency that she ask Mr. Hunt to stay with us while he's in town. His father and mine were close friends. Since Daddy's death, the Hunts have been splendid to mother." She added spitefully: "We're giving a party in Loring Hunt's honor and I guess you'd better not come."

"Try and keep me away," said Jerry. "I'm not letting the girl I'm engaged to run around unprotected with that lizard in the vicinity."

"We're not engaged," Rose told him.

"We're practically engaged," said Jerry.

A week later Loring Hunt arrived. He was wearing a mustache and colored glasses, both of which he removed as soon as he was inside the house. "It's my defense," he smiled by way of explanation. "I'd be mobbed without them."

Loring was all and more than she had expected. There were a few grey hairs about his temples, but what are a few grey hairs when the man of her dreams was here in the flesh and seeming to take a particular interest in her.

At least Rose imagined he was taking a particular interest in her.

"I look under 30, eh?" Loring chuckled. "They do marvelous things in Hollywood."

DURING the first of the evening Jerry assumed an attitude of aloofness. He stood in a corner and tried to look disdainful and superior. But when this attitude failed to impress Rose he abandoned it, and took to following her around.

Toward the end of the evening Loring Hunt asked her if she'd meet him outside on the terrace in five minutes.

"Quite a trick, getting away from that crowd," Loring Hunt smiled. He drew her to a hammock and sat down. "I wanted to have a few moments alone with you before I left."

"Yes?" whispered Rose.

"You remind me so much of your father. He was a fine man. I remember him well."

"You remember my father? But I was only a child when he died!"

"You were at that," said Loring Hunt. "I was young too." He sighed. "Ah, me! How time does fly. Here I am almost 50 and——"

"Fifty!" cried Rose. "Why, I thought——that is——in your pictures——"

"I look under 30, eh?" Loring chuckled. "They do marvelous things in Hollywood. But, here. Let's not talk of me. Tell me about yourself. Are you in love? I noticed a fine looking boy giving you a lot of attention."

Rose was a bit overcome. She hadn't dreamed that her ideal was——was an old man!

She started to speak, but a figure had glided up and was standing in front of them. It was Jerry. In the pale light she could see the set look to his jaw.

"Ah," said Loring Hunt, rising. "here he is now. We were just talking about you, young man. Rose was telling me—— well, rather I was telling her that it was a pity her father couldn't have lived to see his daughter grown to womanhood."

"Yeah?" said Jerry.

There was a pause, Rose leaped to her feet. "Mr. Hunt was asking me if I'm in love and—— and I told him yes. I told him I was in love with you, Jerry."

Slowly Jerry relaxed. Rose had taken his arm and was hanging on for dear life. It was a good thing, he told himself importantly, for Loring Hunt, that she had come to her senses.

THE Once over
BY H.I.PHILLIPS

THE BLOW OF BLOWS

THE old landmarks, guideposts, traditions, former ways of life, and the established institutions continue to fall. If it isn't one thing it's another. Now it is Adolphe Menjou's mustache. It has disappeared, and the world as we knew it has taken another blow.

• • •

Despite all the changes, all the upsets, all the fade-outs we had felt that the Menjou mustache was safe, a bulwark in the fight for the things of yesteryear. They could kill honor in great governments, efface all concepts of international law, destroy world amity and hack at the foundations of freedom, but Adolphe's mustache stood firm and indestructible. The old China could fall, British colonial rule topple, the economy of countless nations collapse . . . but every dawn saw the Menjou upper lip intact, unadulterated, strong, confident and reassuring.

• • •

Poland, Czechoslovakia and other states could lose their liberties, Churchill could lose a premiership, "Oklahoma" could lose a booking, MacArthur could lose his rule in Japan, the Yanks could even lose a world series, but the Menjou mustache remained unthreatened and intact. Boy and man, it had been with Adolphe, forty years, an American institution. The children, pop, mom, grandpa, grandma and even great grandpop had been raised on it. It held a place on the screen with the Metro lion, the Pathe rooster, the haystack and the sunset finale.

All these things might go, we thought, as the white Russian wolfhound, the knitting scene and the silent drama had perished . . . but the Menjou face would weather every threat, survive every attack and stand firm against fire, storm or revolution. But, lo, this, too, has passed away.

The sad thought is that it took no terrific battle, no hand-to-hand trench fighting, no long, bitter struggle to accomplish the deed. Adolphe objected a little and put up some resistance, but it was only token resistance. All that was finally required to get his consent to the deed was $10,000! For ten grand, the great man surrendered and shaved off the most famous mustache in movie history, the hirstuite adornment that had been linked with the moving pictures down through the years.

Just for a pittance he sold us,
Just for some silver and gold,
Jauntily taking the action,
Joining the clean-shaven fold.

Just for the ten grand he left us,
Giving the word "Let 'er rip!"—
Changing the time-honored features,
Leaving a SMOOTH UPPER LIP!

• • •

Adolphe, how could you! Ain't nuthin sacred no more? Ain't nuthin inviolate?

YE GOTHAM BUGLE

Maid service has been abandoned at Yale and students have to care for their own rooms. Pitchfork sales in New Haven are at a new high and the demand is keen for beds six feet higher than standard, providing more room to brush stuff below. How about a new Yale society, Skull and Brooms? . . . "Twilight Walk" is a creepy lane . . . Burgomaster Impelletteri, while in Italy, is reported anxious to get back to New York where he can get a good Italian dinner . . . "Angels in the Outfield" is a delightful movie that sends you out of the theater with a glow . . . Guy Lombardo completes his first hundred years at the Roosevelt this month.

New Rodeo event: Six wild broncho rides and the winner meets the subway rush . . . Sugar Ray Robinson proves himself a pretty slick hoofer on "Toast of the Town." . . . Observation on seeing Ezio Pinza and Uncle Miltie on the same program: "What's Ezio the star of, 'South Pacific' or 'Hoke Terrific?' "

Father Charles McManus, narrator, explaining every detail of the Roman Catholic high mass, on the telecast from St. Patrick's, is doing a wonderful job. Many a Catholic is learning things he didn't know till now. Telecasts from Protestant churches and synagogues follow soon. Here is one of the finest things ever done by airwave . . . Telecasting of the State Crime Commission hearings would stir reforms.

Now there's a "Miss Football for 1951." Somehow it sounds a little rough on the young lady.

In Peace and War

Built and continually expanded in the economic foundation of market demand, Canada's nickel producing capacity has been available for, and diverted to, military needs in three great periods of national emergency in our time. That capacity gave Canada, the United States, the United Kingdom and their allies overwhelming nickel superiority in World War I and World War II. It is giving the free world similar nickel superiority in the present emergency.

People of the Wilderness

Although with thinly veiled contempt the Chinese call Mongols "people of the wilderness," the mounted Mongolian soldier is still the wonder, as he was once the terror, of the civilized world. So accustomed to the saddle that he has an unsteady, bow-legged roll to his walking gait, the Mongol is a crack shot, a natural scout, and is contemptuous of danger even during modern-day attack from the air. Seven centuries ago Genghis Khan set hordes of such horsemen loose upon the world, and swept all before him from the Yellow Sea to the Adriatic. His grandson, Kublai Khan, became the master of the whole of China, Indochina, Burma, Korea and much of Russia. Another great Khan, Tamerlane, subdued Iran, defeated the Turks and fired Moscow.

Beryllium Study

Detection of as little as a billionth of an ounce of the beryllium in the body has been made possible by means of a new chemical technique. Prior to 1949, beryllium was used in the manufacture of fluorescent tubes, and it is for this reason that warnings were issued against breaking old tubes in disposing of them. New compounds, which are not toxic, are now used. In an attempt to understand the nature of the action of beryllium, numerous studies are being conducted on animals, it was pointed out in a report by Dr. T. Y. Toribara and Dr. P. S. Chen, Jr., of the University of Rochester, who said: "Distribution and excretion studies using radioactive beryllium have shown where the element is deposited and its rate of elimination. These quantities of beryllium are very small, and accurate analyses are very important."

Problem-Solver

Even manufacturers of miniature motor cars have their problems with finishes. One such problem developed when the maker of toy plastic cars was puzzled over the way to equip his minute motors with authentic-looking chrome bumpers without upsetting production. The answer was found to be a specially formulated finish that will not attack the plastic and that dries in one minute, permitting continuous production. By means of it, costs were kept down and saleability was improved.

Soldier Students

The school bell has rung for a significant number of soldiers, it was revealed by a recent compilation of results of the Army's Troop Education Program. Consolidation of statistics for the first three months of 1951 revealed that Army personnel earned 5,251 fifth grade and 1,147 eighth grade certificates; 9,205 high school diplomas, and 1,786 completions of the first year of college. In addition, 47 Army officers completed two-year college requirements and 24 officers received baccalaureate degrees during the quarter-year period. Substantial increases were noted in the education activity program, particularly in the continental United States, with the Fifth Army recording a 200 per cent gain over participation during the previous quarter-year, October-December, 1950.

Rural Population Is Salvation of Today's Civilization

By Wright A. Patterson

THE FIRST WEEK of December, 1951 will mark the end of 11 years that I have been writing this column. Through those eventful 11 years I have, on many occasions, recalled the content of that first column, but I have never reprinted it. It contained a prophecy, made to me by Arthur Balfour, whom during World War I, I considered the most capable, the most discerning of the British statesmen.

The time was the day that marked the close of that conflict in November of 1918. The place was a parlor in the Savoy Hotel on the Strand in London. In that parlor we listened to the wildly hilarious Londoners, millions of them, expressing their joy over the close of the war. Balfour put down the window that he might make himself heard, and then said to me:

"Today we English and all the others of the allied world are crazed with joy over the ending of the war. They do not realize that the world faces a more serious problem now than at any time during the last four years. We know what has happened in Russia; we know that France, Italy and the Balkans are on the verge of Bolshevism; in England we are seriously affected, and in the great cities of America the virus is working.

"Within a comparatively short time we will be engaged in another global struggle that will mark the end of civilization in Europe as we have known and enjoyed it. Our hope of having it returned to us lies in the rural population of America, the people of your towns, your villages and farms. They are the safest, surest people in the world today. If America stays out of that coming conflict, those people of rural America will bring our civilization back to us within one or two generations. If America joins in that conflict, she will lose her civilization, and it will take centuries, rather than only generations, to get it back."

It was a startling, an unbelievable statement, but I have lived to see much of what Balfour said come to pass. There was that second global war, more destructive, more terrible, than the first one. Considerable portions of Europe are today living under the blighting influence of Communism; England has turned to socialism, and France and Italy are on the verge. I have lived to see the victorious Democratic party, dominated by the socialistic New Deal, and this followed by the even more dangerous Fair Deal. We are moving toward socialism at an all too rapid pace.

Since that first week in December, 1840, with that Balfour prophecy before me as a text, I have endeavored to convince my rural audience, the people of the villages, the towns and the farms, of the dangers in the trend of the socialistic left. I have hoped to cause them to realize their part in the saving of the nation and the world civilization. For us, the destruction will be marked by personal and national bankruptcy, caused largely by the effort to meet the demand of those seeking something for nothing. "With the coming of bankruptcy there will be nothing from which to provide that something that is expected.

I have seen that second and greater conflict come and the Hitler legions destroyed. But with that conflict there was destroyed much of the European civilization. Poland and the Balkan states have been enveloped within the destructive folds of Communism; France and Italy are on the verge.

England has gone socialistic, and we in the United States have followed the New Deal, and then the Fair Deal, along the socialistic trail. My feeble efforts, as well as the efforts of many others of greater ability and with larger audiences, have been outweighed by the something-for-nothing provided through doles to the farmers for not planting or high food prices.

They proved more effective than mere words, and they have followed the Pied Piper of socialism, until we are now standing on the brink of the precipice. Because the Jeffersonian Democrats of the south refused to follow the socialistic program, we are still on that brink. We have one last chance to escape the abyss.

That is the next national election. If we at that time defeat the forces of destruction, we can turn back from that socialistic brink.

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

America found last week, as it had before, that United States Senator Robert A. Taft is a direct man. Mr. Taft, along with many others, is a candidate for the Presidency—but the Senator has stepped up on the firing line and said so.

Senator Taft, to most Americans the epitome of honesty and integrity, pledged the following platform if nominated at the Republican Convention next July:

1. A return to progress "within the principles of liberty rather than the principles of socialism."

2. A return to "honesty and integrity" in government, and an end to corruption and influence peddling.

3. A reappraisal of the Nation's foreign policy to stop the spread of Communism, "including the establishment of Korea as a free country and the completion of the arming of Western Europe to enable it to defend itself against Russian aggression."

At the same time, in his candidacy announcement, Senator Taft made it clear that he is adamantly opposed to the "smearing tactics" of irresponsible organizations" like the "Partisan Republicans of California," which, he indicated, has been making "wholly unjstified attacks" on General Eisenhower and Governor Warren, both unannounced candidates for the GOP nomination to the Presidency.

Leaving no doubt in question-ers minds that he is an all-out candidate for election, Senator Taft also told interviewers that he will run for the GOP presidential nomination in Wisconsin at the State Primary Election, April 7, 1952.

Should Senator Taft gain the GOP nomination at Chicago next July, and most political observers, at the moment, concede that once the various States have cast their favorite son ballots, Taft should be favored for the nomination, America would get its first showdown vote by the public since 1932 on the Welfare State philosophy.

Senator Taft vs. President Truman would be free enterprise vs. the Handout State, a contest no other Republican has staged in 20 years, and one that few, on their records, are likely to wage. Taft's advantages, observers concede, are his unquestioned honesty, his refusal to tamper with conviction, and his willingness to carry the fight for individual freedom to all comers.

In a Truman-Taft contest, the people, nearly all hands agree, would have a clear cut choice between an advocate of an all-powerful Federal Government and a champion of greater State, local and individual responsibility. Issue by issue there is little question but that the fight would be waged. It would be one of the most interesting Presidential elections in the Nation's history—and perhaps one of the most important.

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT
JAMES DORAIS

It's no secret that California's greatest source of wealth, in spite of the recent rapid growth of all manner of manufacturing and commercial enterprises, still is the agricultural production that stems from the fertile soil. Not so well known, perhaps, is the fact that the State's second largest industry—also with its roots in the land—is the oil industry.

Last week, California oil people set aside some of their normal chores to celebrate Oil Progress Week, calling public attention to some of the industry's problems and why those problems are important to everyone.

But while many of the specific problems are of general interest, the underlying theme of the Oil Progress campaign was particularly significant. That theme was that the free enterprise system is an indispensable part of the American way of life, that the oil industry is a prideful, highly productive party of that system and that its progress and prosperity of all legitimate American industries, go hand in hand with the progress and prosperity of every individual.

One official voiced the following suggestions of things that businesses can do to help preserve the American system:

"1. We must make sure our own house is in order.

"2. We must stop running to Washington for help whenever the free working of our competitive system presents us with a new problem.

"3. We must stop being fleafeatists and go to work selling our American way of doing things.

"4. We must realize that an attack on the freedom of one industry or one profession is an attack on all. The battle of the doctors against socialized medicine and the power companies against government duplication of power facilities is our battle too.

"5. We must develop better understanding of the economics of our business among all those who benefit from it. We must make everyone realize that our progress and security are mainly dependent on the progress and security of production, rather than on anything government can do for us through taxation."

An excellent job was done during Oil Progress Week in acquainting Californians with the importance of an industry that directly employs approximately 120,000 people here, and whose California-produced products have an annual value of some two billion dollars.

But on a broader scale, the industry did an equally commendable job in demonstrating that there is no reason to apologize for being efficient, productive and progressive. To many industries—for so many years used to being on the defensive—that example would be a rewarding one to follow.

Sup. Judge Milton Sapiro, S. F.—"A juvenile delinquent is only a reflection of the adult life around him. Condemn him—and you condemn adult morals."

CRIME IN AMERICA

The most startling and eye opening facts about organized crime in the United States will be revealed to citizens of Lemon Grove beginning next week when Senator Estes Kefauver's sensational book, "Crime in America" starts its serialization in the Review.

This is the complete story, written by the man who pioneered the investigation from the beginning. The committee hearings disclosed such amazing information on crime throughout the country that the American people scarcely could believe what they had heard.

And now, with the full, documented story prepared for newspaper use, the Review is proud to offer it to its readers.

In the course of the 18 installments, the whole seemingly fantastic story of high political corruption, of the dope combine, gambling, white slavery, and every other conceivable form of vice will be unfolded before local citizens who follow Senator Kefauver's absorbing story.

Here are testimonies of men, relating sordid stories of the Mafia, Murder Inc., and the Crime Syndicate. The amazing evidence presented is irrefutable. That this evidence and the whole story of the investigation need be brought to the people of America's small towns, as well as its large cities, is beyond any doubt.

Senator Kefauver's investigation has been called the greatest crime hunt in history. This series names and digs into the corruption in government with no respect or concession to political parties. Review readers will be astonished at the sensational findings.

"Crime in America" is a call to the American people to smash the vicious crime element which is sapping the morals, vitality, health and wealth of our nation.

Elementary Student Council Sponsors Booth

The fourth, fifth and sixth grade Student Council will sponsor a bean bag throw booth at the Halloween Carnival next week. All members of the council ask that parents help support this annual affair sponsored by the PTA.

Sixth Grade Art on Display

From October 8 to 19, the bulletin board was decorated by Miss Holmquist's sixth grade class, room 17. The decorations consisted of a mural on Hawaii and some of the maps of Australia made by the class.

The following class chairmen were elected for the months of October and November: Byron Cannon, class chairman; Roger Hoppe, roll; Antonie Kallis, paper; Cecelia Rojas, banking; Marilyn Sema, flowers; Deanne Malmstrom and Mary Sue McMahon, pencils; Janet Baxter, boards; Don Moody, windows; Roger Hoppe, balls; Karen Markinson, spelling; Given Torrey and Joann Price, bookshelf; Sue Ann McDonald, librarian; Randall Nisleit and Marily Sima, student council representatives; Karen Markinson and Linda Maxted, junior Red Cross delegates.

Members of the California School Safety Patrol from Lemon Grove School who will enjoy a matinee at the Grove Theatre on Saturday through the courtesy of John van Gilse are Robert Ellis, Mike Sauder, Steven Foster, Robert Thompson John Cornelius, Howard Pendergrass, Robert Luna, and Lorenzo Alvarez. School safeties who will also be theatre guests are Dwayne Offill and Henry Hall.

Vista La Mesa School

Parents of kindergarten children have been visiting the school during the past weeks. The children have been demonstrating their singing ability, and their skills in marching, hopping and skipping.

During the current study of animals, the class has had a cat, baby puppies, and a gold fish at school for first hand observation.

Especially the young students enjoy the dolls which were given to them by the PTA. They want to thank this organization and many other people who have given so much toward the kindergarten playhouse.

The morning first grade went to the San Diego Zoo last Tuesday. Mmes. Stuart Roland, Wilfred Traylor, Harvey McDonald and Frank Tarr accompanied the class. Following a bus tour of the zoo, the children ate lunch and then enjoyed a tour on foot in the main area. They returned by school bus.

The class is now studying the zoo, and following the trip, they are more interested than ever in information concerning the animals they are discussing.

Reviewing Sports

By ROGER CONLEE

The Helix Highlanders climbed out of the City League cellar and into sixth place in league play last weekend. Before Friday's games, Helix and Kearny were deadlocked for the bottom position with 0-2 records. On Friday Kearny lost to Point Loma in a league fray, while the Highlanders lost a freak decision to Sweetwater's Red devil's, a non-loop foe, 14-0, in the fog-drenched Aztec Bowl last Friday night. The fog was so thick that one couldn't see the stands on the opposite side of the field. Those seated high in the stadium could follow the game only through the reports of the public address speaker.

Friday night, the Highlanders jump back into league action as they meet La Jolla's Vikings at the Aztec Bowl at 8:00 p. m. If clear weather prevails, it should be an exciting game. Loop standings:

CITY PREP LEAGUE

	W	L	PF	PA
Hoover	3	0	83	13
Point Loma	2	0	19	6
La Jolla	2	1	34	26
San Diego	1	1	47	7
Grossmont	1	2	31	55
Helix	0	2	6	73

Last Friday's Results
Sweetwater 14, Helix 0.
Hoover 31, Grossmont 7.
Point Loma 7, Kearny 0.

This Friday's Games

Aztecs in Deadlock Bluejackets Romp

The Aztecs of San Diego State tied a strong Arizona State squad, 27-27, before 13,000 Homecoming fans in the Aztec Bowl Saturday night, in the most thrilling college game presented in the county for some time. The underdog Aztecs played spirited ball and with better line-play might possibly have beaten the Sun Devils. By playing a deadlock, the local collegiates kept their unbeaten string alive at seven games.

Saturday afternoon the Naval Training Center Bluejackets trampled Amphibious Pacific, 68-2, before 5000 fans at Hull Field. The Bluejacket offense looked better than it did at any time during the season.

Next Saturday, the Aztecs meet Los Angeles State, while the 'Jacke's take on the Marine Recruit Depot Devildogs.

GRID PREDICTIONS

Lemon Grove PTA

Members of the community who attended the Lemon Grove School PTA meeting last Thursday evening in the school cafeteria know that the 3 R's are certainly being taught in our schools. With the topic "Tonight the Teacher Has the Floor," teachers representing the kindergarten through the eighth grade spoke to a full house of parents on the grade standards set up in the district. Speakers included Hazel Mulkey, Helen Thompson, Agnes Rodgers, Hazel Jensen, John Strawn, Robert Sutten, Clarence Allen, Margaret Darroch and Harry Butler.

At the opening of the meeting, presided over by Mrs. S. K. Solleder, president, the colors were presented by Girl Scout Troop No. 96. Mrs. Rosart gave the inspirational thought for the evening. Mrs. R. H. Milner and Mrs. Middleton, new members of the PTA board were presented. It was announced that no Well Baby Conference would be held during the month of November because of conflicting holiday dates.

Room count award was won by Miss Sisti's first grade class. The first grade room representatives, with Mrs. Gene Cooper, chairman, were the hostesses for the evening. Next meeting of the group will be on November 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marinello and Dennis, 5 months old, 1565 Taft, flew to San Francisco last Thursday on business.

Texas Breeds World's Best Golfers

By GRANTLAND RICE

WHAT element is there in the air of Texas that produces golf champions? What quality is there in Texas soil that makes a golf swing? The record of this somewhat extended commonwealth is certainly an uncommon one in golf.

The Open Golf Champion of the U. S. is Ben Hogan, a Fort Worth Texan. The Women's Open Golf Champion is Betsy Rawls, another Texan. The U. S. Amateur Champion is Billy Maxwell, also born and bred a Texan.

Who was it that came before Hogan to rule U. S. golf? Ralph Guldahl, a big Texan who won the U. S. Open and the Western Open two years in succession. Who followed the brilliant Guldahl? Byron Nelson, one of the great golfers of all time. Byron Nelson, another Texas product, belongs to the nonpareils. Who were in there swinging all along the route? Lloyd Mangrum and Jimmy Demaret, also from Texas.

Grantland Rice

What state or section ever gave the game so many star golfers as Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Lloyd Mangrum, Ralph Guldahl and Jimmy Demaret?

When Billy Maxwell, a 22-year-old stylist, captured the recent Amateur Championship, Texas owned practically all the upland country.

When Miss Rawls finally moved past Babe Didrikson to win the Women's Open, it was all Texas.

The recent victory of young Miss Rawls at Atlanta recalls again the number of brilliant women golfers Texas has given the game. I played with Babe Didrikson in Los Angeles back in 1932, 19 years ago when she was just starting out.

She has proved to be the finest woman golfer the game has ever known, able at times to turn in a 66 or a 67. In recent years, Texas has turned out a remarkable group of girl stars, including, among others, Peggy Chandler, a low-70 shooter.

California set something of a record in the number of tennis stars it developed, year after year. But California's tennis colony doesn't match the class of men and women Texas has given to golf. Why should one state, a state even as big as Texas is, keep such a grip on one sport?

One reason is that one star can work up increased local interest among the kids. For example, you may recall when Bobby Jones came along in Georgia. Before you could turn around, all types of kids were playing golf, such as Perry Adair, R. Watts Gunn, Alexa Stirling, Crawford Rainwater and many others. The present Woman's Champion is an Atlanta girl, one of the country's best.

It got to be that way in Texas. I recall when Ralph Guldahl came along, they began to talk about young Jimmy Demaret and then Byron Nelson. The rivalry soon became so keen that golfers such as Ben Hogan really went to work.

No golfers ever worked harder than Hogan and Nelson to perfect their swings. Hour after hour, month after month, year after year, they hit an incredible number of practice shots. They got their swings almost perfectly grooved for every type of shot. I've seen Hogan work two hours on one type of shot from 90 yards off the green. The Texans often worked together, more than willing to help each other out when any kink attacked a swing.

I recall one occasion where Hogan won a 72-hole Open tournament with 283 for the 72 holes, a new record—something like 26 under par. Yet next day Ben was out taking a lesson and working over a slight change in his grip.

Looking Back

The National League got away like a flash. It won four of the first five modern world series' contests. The A. L. was almost a joke, meeting the Cubs and Giants. But the tide turned—as tides always will. Since 1910 the American League has taken over.

It must first be admitted the American League has had most of the great ballplayers: Cobb, Ruth, Gehrig, Sisler, Speaker, Collins, Lajoie, DiMaggio and Feller.

The National League can't quite match this collection even with Wagner, Hornsby, Frisch, Hartnett, Musial, Alexander, Mathewson, Traynor, Kling, Hubbell, Dean and Terry. Not quite.

Who is going to match Ruth and Cobb for a starter? Name four or five? Gehrig or Sisler? Wagner was the greatest National Leaguer. Hornsby was next. It might be Musial is third.

The Dodgers, with a better-than-average catcher, infield and outfield, had to struggle along with one good pitcher. His name was Preacher Roe. Newcombe, Branca and others were merely throwers.

Just a fair pitcher should have won 20 or 25 games with the Dodgers with such first-class talent in other positions as Campanella, Hodges, Robinson, Reese, Furillo and Snider.

No reasonably sane party can doubt that from August first on to the fading stretch the Giants were a much better team than the Dodgers were all year.

Ceiling Zero?

How high will a rifle shoot? This is a matter about which practically all shooters, at some time or other, have speculated. To boil it down into general terms, with the safety element as a prime consideration, the answer is "A lot farther than you think."

John J. O'Connor, of the physics and ballistics research laboratory of Remington Arms Company, Inc., has reduced the matter to a mathematical formula which reveals the rather surprising information that a bullet fired vertically upward will reach a height equal to more than half the maximum horizontal range of a similar bullet fired at the optimum angle of departure.

Concedes Some Danger

O'Connor says: "Since aviation became popular, there has been a slight but present danger from amateur anti-aircraft men on the ground. In the early days of commercial planes it was all too common for planes flying relatively low over the more remote hills of the eastern United States to be met by bullets. When the German dirigibles were making their regularly scheduled flights to this country, there was at least one incident when a dirigible was hit by a small caliber bullet. These and other accidents probably reflect the lack of knowledge of the impressive height which small caliber bullets can attain. In other words shooters depend upon gravity to make their prank a harmless one. Unfortunately gravity, though highly effective in making a poor range guesser come home with an empty trophy bag, is relatively ineffective in stopping a bullet projected skyward.

No Child's Toy

"For example, consider the 22 long rifle bullet, considered by many, unfortunately, to be a child's toy. As is well known, the high speed version has a maximum horizontal range of about 9/10 of a mile. Not so well known is the fact that if fired vertically upwards, it will attain a height of about 7/10 of a mile or 3700 feet. Even regular or Match velocity 22 long rifle bullets will travel about 3500 feet upward. The force of gravity at the muzzle amounts to only 1.63% of the total force acting. At any velocity above 280 feet per second, the air resistance forces are larger than forces due to gravity.

"Calculations indicate that under any practical conditions the attainable vertical height above gun position is more than half the attainable horizontal range, regardless of bullet or muzzle velocity. When we realize that the maximum horizontal range for center fire rifle bullets may be as much as 6000 yards, we see that it is extremely hazardous to shoot at high angles of elevation without being absolutely certain that not only is there plenty of horizontal distance available, but also there are no aircraft in the vicinity."

"Old Reliable"

In the closing days of the fishing season, the crisp, sunny days of late Fall, the old reliable tandem "guinea-tail" spinner will be found to be one of the most effective of all bass lures. In fact, there are myriad oldtime anglers who assert that if they were to be restricted to just one bass lure, they'd choose the "guinea-tail." The tandem spinner shown here is Pflueger's luminous spinner and is the pioneer of all the "guinea-tail" tandems.

Fewer Fires

Although there were more people seeking recreation in the national forests last year than ever before, the visitors started fewer fires through carelessness than during the previous year, according to the Wildlife Management Institute.

Careless smokers started 1,701 fires on national forests as compared with 1,812 in 1949, records of the U.S. Forest Service show. Incendiary fires, however, increased from 1,204 in 1949 to 1,721 in 1950. The majority of the blazes intentionally set by "fire bugs" occurred on the national forests of the 11 states lying south of Virginia.

Wait Awhile

Although you see your hunting friends getting busy with dogs and arms for the almost-upon-us hunting season, don't you anglers start racking up for the year. There's still a lot of good fishing for crappie in ponds and even the bass, if you have the patience to fish deep water—and it does take patience. Get those lures down deep, deep, deep and fish 'em slow! That is the technique most likely to produce for the late-season basser.

Minestrone Soup
(Serves 8-10)

- 1½ cups white beans
- 1 can consomme or beef broth
- 6 cups water
- ¼ pound bacon, chopped
- 1 medium sized onion
- 1 cup diced carrots
- ½ clove garlic, peeled
- ¾ cup celery (tops and all)
- 1 No. 2 can tomatoes
- 1 cup finely shredded cabbage
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ¾ cup diced potatoes
- ¼ cup peas
- 1 cup spaghetti, broken
- Grated Parmesan cheese

Soak the beans in the water for several hours. Drain and put into soup kettle with consomme or beef broth. Add the bacon and all the vegetables except potatoes and peas. Cook over low heat for 1½ hours. Add salt, pepper, potatoes, peas and spaghetti and cook for 30 minutes. Serve in large bowls with grated Parmesan cheese.

Shrimp Chowder
(Serves 4)

- 3 medium onions, sliced
- 3 tablespoons fat
- 1 cup boiling water
- 5 medium potatoes
- 3 teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 pound fresh shrimp
- 1 quart milk, heated
- 1 cup grated, processed American cheese
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley

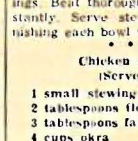
Saute onions in hot fat in deep kettle until tender. Add boiling water, then sliced potatoes, salt and pepper. Simmer, covered, 15 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Then add shrimp which has previously been cooked and has the black vein removed, the hot milk in which cheese has melted and parsley.

HERE'S A DELICIOUSLY different soup which is good enough for a main dish. Try it with grape and orange salad, popovers and chocolate cake for a really good supper.

Sparerib-Vegetable Soup
(Serves 6)

- 1½ pounds spareribs
- 1 tablespoon fat
- 4 cups boiling water
- 1 teaspoon celery seed
- ½ teaspoon savory, if desired
- 4 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2½ cups canned tomatoes
- 4 medium carrots, quartered
- 1 green pepper, cut in strips
- 8 small onions, halved
- 4 medium potatoes, quartered

Have spareribs cut in pairs but not cracked. Brown well on both sides in fat in a Dutch oven or a kettle. Add water, celery seed, savory, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, for 45 minutes. Add all remaining ingredients and continue to simmer for 30 minutes.



• • •

Cream of Potato-Onion Soup
(Serves 6)

- 2 frankfurters
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup finely chopped onions
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 quart milk
- 2 cups cooked, riced potatoes
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Wipe frankfurters with a damp cloth and slice thin. Melt butter; add frankfurters and onions and cook about 2 minutes. Push frankfurters and onions aside and stir in flour with butter and blend thoroughly. Add milk gradually, then potatoes, stirring constantly. Add salt and pepper; cook until thickened. Serve immediately.

• • •

Salmon Bisque
(Serves 8)

- 1 tall can red salmon
- ¼ cup butter
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 tablespoon chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 quart milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- Lemon slices

Drain salmon, saving liquid; remove skin and mash salmon to a smooth paste. Melt butter in saucepan; add celery and onion and simmer until both are soft and yellow. Blend in flour; add milk and stir until mixture thickens slightly. Add salmon, salmon liquid and seasonings. Beat thoroughly, stirring constantly. Serve steaming hot, garnishing each bowl with lemon slice.

• • •

Chicken Gumbo
(Serves 8)

- 1 small stewing chicken
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons fat
- 4 cups okra
- 2 cups tomato pulp
- 4 cups water
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- Salt and pepper

Clean chicken and cut into serving portions. Dredge lightly with flour and brown in hot fat. When browned add okra, tomatoes, parsley and water. Season with salt and pepper and simmer until chicken is tender, about 2½ hours. It may be necessary to add more water during cooking time. If desired, the following may also be added to the soup before it's cooked: 1 cup diced celery, ½ cup corn, 1½ cups potatoes (cooked) and 1 cup cooked rice.

Bacteria grow and multiply rapidly in soup stock which is kept at lukewarm temperature. Cool stock by placing soup kettle in a vessel of cold water, then refrigerate.

Fat which forms on top of soup excludes air and retards spoilage. Do not remove this fat layer until ready to use the soup.

Make crisp croutons for soup from stale bread by cutting it in small cubes and sauteing in a small amount of butter. Turn frequently for even browning and drain on absorbent paper.

LYNN SAYS:

Here are Ways to Make Soups More Palatable

Soup preparation is a simple task but it should be done properly to get the most out of meat and vegetables used.

Cooking soup stock at high temperatures is wasteful since high heat coagulates the protein in the meat and this floats to the top as a brownish scum, rather than remaining in the stock where it is palatable and nutritious.

Slick Trick

Small steel parts are sometimes painted by a dipping and spinning process. Approximately fifty pounds of them can be done at one time in this manner. Placed in a wire basket, they are dipped in a drum of paint, then they are placed on a turn-table and spun for forty-five seconds. The finished parts are then placed in a tray, ready for the baking process which dries them.

Helpful Hints

For $64 questions, The Parent's Consultation Service of The BOOK HOUSE FOR CHILDREN respectfully refers the radio quiz-masters to the kindergarten crowd. Only trouble is, the Service doesn't know where answers can be found to queries like, "How high is the sky, Mommie?" which recently was posed by a three-year-old.

Modern Steeplejack

Getting ready to paint a 120-foot smokestack at an industrial plant, the steeplejack hooked his rig at the chimney top by helicopter instead of building a scaffold. This method of preparation took only half an hour instead of the day and a half that would have been required to build the scaffold.

Stair Treads

Stair treads and risers are often scuffed and marred. Protect their beauty by rubbing them with a light coat of boiled linseed oil. If you desire handsome natural wood finished stairs, remove the old finish.

Hauling Freight

The average revenue for hauling a ton of freight one mile received in 1950 by railroads in the United States was 1.329 cents, an increase of only 37 percent compared with the average in 1939.

Papa is a Nobody

The name of Nathaniel Hawthorne, the great American author, fills people with awe, even today. However, his children, in their time, were little-impressed with the importance of their father. The BOOK HOUSE FOR CHILDREN tells how the little Hawthornes, Una, Rose, and Julian, who loved him dearly, "climbed all over the great writer, covering his chin and breast with grass, while he lay in the sunshine."

Way Back When

Tea-drinking is described by The BOOK HOUSE FOR CHILDREN as "a social custom that arose during the prosperous days of Ancient China when almost every better-class Chinese home had a tea-house in its garden." There, fragrant tea was served, scalding hot, in dainty thimbles of fine, white china, to elegantly-attired ladies carrying scented fans. Although the expression, "a tea," is still used to describe a social gathering of well-dressed ladies in the afternoon, tea-drinking has become popular with nearly all classes in almost every part of the world. Even its use as a cold drink is celebrated in this country during the week of July 13, which has been designated as National Ice Tea Time.

Permanent Wave Progress

Permanent waving was first introduced in 1906. Early waves, given with complicated machines, took almost 12 hours. Today, with a home permanent kit, a woman can give herself a permanent at home in as little as two hours.

Hawaiian History

Scientific study of charcoal excavated in a Hawaiian cave now leads ethnologists to believe that Polynesians arrived on the Island of Oahu, home of Honolulu, about 1004 A.D.

Household Hints

Prevent Rust

Dip the bottoms of cans of cleaning powder in paraffin wax and they will not rust the shelves.

• • •

Protect Clothes

Old pillow cases may be used to cover dresses in the clothes closet. Make a slit in the closed end and draw the case over the garment on the hanger.

• • •

Store Strawberries

Store strawberries unwashed and unhulled in the refrigerator covered with a piece of waxed paper until just before using, at which time they should be washed and hulled.

• • •

Chappel Hands

Keep a bottle of glycerine by the kitchen sink. It is excellent to prevent chapped hands. A teaspoon of glycerine added to each quart of soapy water will help keep woolens fluffy and soft. It can also be used to lubricate food beaters and grinders.

• • •

Excellent Salad

Chopped spinach, endive, and lettuce can be combined with blue cheese and sprinkled with French dressing to make an excellent salad.

No Privileges

"Madam," said the ticket examiner, "you cannot travel first-class with a third-class ticket."

"But I'm one of the directors' wives," she protested.

"You couldn't do it, madam," he rejoined, "if you were the director's only wife."

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE —NOT GOOD FOOD

Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different!

Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon ... right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, worn-out feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "peppy," energetic self! Get FEEN-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25¢, 50¢ or only 10¢.

Internationalism A Real Threat, Shearer Says

William K. Shearer, candidate for the State Assembly in the new 77th District, today blasted internationalism as "one of the greatest threats to the American way of life." Speaking before the San Diego Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, Shearer's topic was "American Nationalism vs. Internationalism."

The candidate opened up on the United Nations which he described as a step towards "total domination of America by foreign influences." "We hear much about peace," Shearer said, "but internationalism has always meant war. The Holy Alliance, the League of Nations, and now the United Nations have failed to keep the peace."

He then turned to the European Recovery Program citing its failure to stop communism, and the fact that friendship cannot be purchased with a mere handout. Shearer gave industrial recovery figures for the major European nations showing that further foreign economic aid was unnecessary.

Shearer also called for an end to immigration to this country and condemned the North Atlantic Military alliance. "Arms aid to Japan prior to World War II killed American boys and arms aid to Europe will have the same result again." He added, "Our domestic military program is geared to our international commitments. Universal military training is not a program for American defense, but a plan for world military domination."
